PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

- by Shelley Stewart, CLC

It's been an exciting year at FLTA; it's hard to believe we are entering into the final quarter of my Presidency.

I am proud to say the direction of the Association has progressed toward a stronger focus on the legislative challenges facing our industry.

We are in the middle of the title industry's perfect storm: RESPA Reform; a struggling economy; short sales and foreclosures flooding the market; repeated attacks on our fee structure; and bifurcated regulation.

In order to see our way to a clearer future, FLTA has dramatically increased the coordinated efforts to meet with and educate key legislators on the vast array of challenges that are facing us.

This summer, we held meetings with House Speaker Cannon and Senate President Atwater (who is running for Chief Financial Officer), and Representative Dorothy Hukill. We have an additional meeting planned with Senator Haridopolos and his Senate leadership team. The reception from these meetings has been extremely positive.

Our goal is to demonstrate that the title industry is a vital part of one of the key factors in Florida's recovery – real estate. We will continue to work with our allied industries and legislators to develop the platform of issues that we will be focusing on in the future.

Your attendance at this year's convention is important to ensure that you are fully informed on FLTA and industry related issues that could affect you and your respective companies. I look forward to seeing you there.

CAUTION: FOREIGN BUYERS BEARING CASHIER'S CHECKS
By Pat Hancock, Chairman of the Insurers' Section

Fraud scams are still the bane of the closing agent and the current trend is the counterfeit check from a foreign bank. Many agents have received checks drawn on foreign banks which have been later determined to be counterfeit. Here are some common factors:

- The check represents the initial deposit, but the amount exceeds the amount of earnest money deposit required by the contract. Usually, the excess amount is substantial.
- The buyer may request that the excess funds be returned via wire to their account.
- The deposit is in the form of a check drawn on a foreign bank. Although, some checks have been drawn on a local credit union, yet sent from a country which is not the buyer's home country. For example, a cashier's check from a credit union in Vero Beach, Florida, was sent from Canada for a purchaser who was in China. One may want to step back a minute and look at the overall picture – is it reasonable for all these parties to come together in this closing file?
- The bank's address on the cashier's check may merely be a post office box number. It very well may be that a bank uses only a post office address, but the closing agent should take steps to verify that the check is not counterfeit.
- The transaction is an "all-cash" offer to purchase by a buyer who is located out of the country.
- The selling broker has never met the buyer, and the buyer has not physically seen the property. The transactions are usually of a high dollar amount, and it doesn't seem logical that a buyer would spend large sums of money on property he/she has never seen.
- The buyer readily agreed to pay the asking price, or more. These types of buyers don't intend to purchase the property. Their plan is to receive a refund of money from the closing agent's office before the closing agent has time to realize that the buyer's cashier's check is counterfeit. The buyers tend not to waste time in negotiating a price.

Closing offices are cautioned to investigate cashier's checks for their authenticity. Before making any refunds, verify that the check has cleared your account. And, if the situation appears too good to be true, the closing agent may want to investigate the parties before spending time and money working up the closing file.

Did you know that 17% of all paid off mortgages are never released or recorded?

Did you know that 36% of all real estate transactions have some type of lien release clean up that must be done prior to closing?

Did you know that everything that is done to a file after closing and disbursement costs you money?

The Certified Land Title Institute Report - By Debi A Smith, CLS - Chair

The CLT Institute is very happy to announce that SIX of the eight candidates that attempted either the CLC or CLS test were successful this year. The Council is certain the pass percentage has never been better! If you've never taken either test, these are grueling exams with better than 100 essay questions and takes an average of 7 – 8 hours to complete. Searchers also have a legal description/mapping section and closers have closing packages to prepare, (and much, much MORE!)

Congratulations are in order for the following:

The new CLS designees are:

Evelyn J. Large, CLS – Old Republic National Title;

Matthew P Tillman, CLS – First American Title and

Lynn R Tuggle, CLS of Community Land Title Corp.;

The Agent Section Report – by Beverly McReynolds, CLC – Section Chair

The most important accomplishment for the Agent Section in 2010 has been the increase in agent Association membership. Through the many meetings held by our Zone Vice Presidents throughout the State, we have been able to demonstrate the value of the Florida Land Title Association to local agents. In turn, they have been joining by the dozens. We have taken a break from the meetings for the summer but plan to organize more presentations beginning in September bringing more important topics to agents in their communities.

I would like to take this opportunity to welcome the new agents to the Association and to let you know that I, as Chair of the Agent Section, am available to you should you have any questions. Also, I am interested to know what your concerns are in your shops and your local markets. Your input will help us to make our Zone meetings more useful to you.

Lastly, I would like to encourage each agent member to mentor another agent in your area and encourage that agent to become a member of the FLTA. As we near the upcoming legislative session, it will be imperative that we contact as many of our representatives in Tallahassee as possible to make sure they are aware of the important service that we provide for Florida consumers. Each legislator prefers to hear from their respective constituents. Therefore, it is extremely important that we have agent members in as many municipalities as possible and that we stay in contact with the people that have the power to vote in favor of our Bill.

We all know that there is power in numbers. Nearly all licensed underwriters in the State of Florida are members of the FLTA. That is far from true for title agents. So, please help to spread the word to your fellow agents. We must continue to increase our membership. Let's protect our industry by giving our Association a powerful voice in Tallahassee.

The Agent Section Lobby Fund (ASLF) Report

In 2009, the FLTA made a commitment to the Agent Section to assist them in obtaining a lobbyist to specifically address agent concerns and issues that arise through the legislative process. The intent was for the Agent Section to raise the necessary funds needed to pay for the lobbyist agreement and since this would be an ambitious undertaking, the FLTA would stand ready to cover any shortfall in funds until the Agent Section could cover the costs through their own efforts.

The Agent Section has worked diligently during the past two sessions to educate agents about the issues presented during the legislative sessions, to learn more about the legislative process and share that information with agents and to raise the necessary funds needed to continue this important project through pledges and donations from ALL members of the FLTA. Raising funds for the lobby agreement is an ongoing, never-ending responsibility. It has been a major project and concern of the Agent Section since the beginning. September 2011 will mark the beginning of a new contract year for the Agent Lobbyist Agreement, and the ASLF will need your contributions on a regular basis to keep up the good work that has already paid dividends for all title agents in Florida.

A recent message sent by Beverly McReynolds, CLC, and our Agent Section Chair has netted a very positive response and we would like to take this opportunity to THANK ALL of the companies and the individuals that have already made a pledge to continue their support of the ASLF. Do not let the length of this list fool you. If every dollar pledged by the people on this list is collected, it will still not be enough. PLEASE make your pledge today so we can add you name to the list, too!

Huszagh to Step Down

After 18 years as Executive Secretary for the Florida Land Title Association, Lee Huszagh will conclude his service on December 31st of this year.

“It has been a privilege to have been associated with so many talented and dedicated people who lead our industry. The many friends I have made throughout the years have meant more to me than I can express in words. I plan to affiliate with a local Title Insurance Agency here in Tallahassee and will be available for consulting on a limited basis. I hope my friends will call from time to time and keep me advised in their doings. It has been a rewarding career as your Executive and I appreciate all of the support I have received.”

(OUCH!! That hurts! – Ed.)

Governmental Affairs Report – by Alan Fields, Esq. - Chairman

Florida Legislative

As this is an election year, with all members of the Florida house and half of the Florida Senate seats on the ballot, legislatively things have been quiet since the end of the regular session in April.

The legislative staff, however, continues to work diligently. The Florida Senate has interim projects addressing both sinkhole insurance and non-judicial foreclosures. While we do not expect the sinkhole insurance project to impact title practices, a poorly done non-judicial foreclosure bill could severely impact the insurability of property coming out of foreclosure – much to everyone’s detriment. We expect FLTA will be actively offering guidance to the legislative staff during this process.

Florida Regulatory

While a final version has not yet been released, there are rumors that a version of the unlawful inducement rule (previously circulated last March) will be submitted for final approval later this summer.

Separately, the Office of the Insurance Consumer Advocate has announced a public meeting with title insurance companies to discuss consumer issues. This type of meeting is frequently a prelude to the drafting of regulations.

Dodd-Frank Impacts on Title Insurance

The recently approved Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act will impact title professionals and closing practices. Experts are already questioning whether the exclusion for “persons regulated by a state insurance regulator” applies to “closing functions” (as distinguished from core insurance functions).

Since title agencies in Florida are not regulated by the Office of Insurance Regulation (our state insurance regulator), title agents and agencies will presumably be subject to the Act regardless of the final interpretation of the Dodd-Frank Act.

The newly created Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) has been given responsibility for many RESPA functions and specifically tasked with publishing a new mortgage disclosure form that integrates RESPA and Truth in Lending Disclosures (sec. 1098). For reverse mortgages, the CFPB has been directed to consider a consolidated disclosure which integrates RESPA, Truth in Lending and National Housing Act disclosures (sec 1076). Thus we are again going to live through the confusion and uncertainty (and cost of software upgrades) which accompanied the new HUD-1 development.

Because much of the detail under this Act was left to the regulators to determine by further rule, there is still a great deal of uncertainty about how the Dodd-Frank Act will actually be implemented. Stay tuned for more.

VA Requires Detail

On July 30, 2010, the Department of Veterans Affairs issued its circular 26-10-9, which requires a separate itemization of the fees and charges consolidated into line 1101 of the revised HUD-1 form. Because RESPA rules require the aggregation of most title related amounts into line 1101 and 1102, this breakout should be shown on an addendum to the HUD-1.

The same circular requires a detailed breakout of any third party offsets/credits shown on the first page of the HUD-1. That detail can be provided either by adding additional lines in the 200 series of the HUD-1 or as an addendum.

Copies of the circular can be found at http://www.benefits.va.gov/homeloans/circulars/26_10_9.pdf and an amendment at http://www.benefits.va.gov/homeloans/circulars/26_10_9_change1.pdf

New 2010 FAR/BAR

After years of hard work, the 2010 version of the FAR/BAR contract has been approved and will start appearing in your closings shortly. As title agents, we always have to carefully review the contract and close in accord with the agreement of the parties and I think you will find that the 2010 FAR/BAR contract makes some important and helpful changes to the “default” provisions affecting title.

Helpful changes include provisions requiring the seller to provide a copy of any existing owner’s policy and survey within 5 days of the effective date, putting all cost allocations in the same section of the contract, and providing for an automatic closing extension if new Truth in Lending disclosures are required.

Insuring Over Tenant Improvements Liens Riskier

The recent case of Everglades Electric Supply, inc. v. Paraiso Granite, 28 So. 3d 235 (Fla 4th DCA, 2010) called into question our reliance on a recorded “blanket notice” that tenant improvement liens do not attach to the landlord interest in property under §713.10. This case held that the statutory protection afforded by a blanket notice did NOT prevent the attachment of liens to the landlord’s interest where (a) not every lease on the property included the limitation language; or (b) all of the leases included the limitation language, but the language used in some leases was identical to the “specific” language of the blanket notice.

Expect more detail and guidance from your underwriter as to their specific underwriting standards.

Remember to Vote

Being part of a highly regulated industry is both a benefit and a burden. We all spend a significant amount of time keeping our licenses current, getting all of our C.E. completed in each cycle, figuring out the new HUD-1/GFE, and of course following all of the rules – however confusing they may be. We tolerate all of this, because we understand the benefits of good regulation in protecting the public from fraud and abuse, stopping unfair and misleading practices and in protecting the solvency and claims paying ability of the title industry.

Every year, we resolve innumerable ownership issues, help to keep the courthouse records accurate, collect millions of dollars in unpaid child support and unpaid government taxes. Our work helps keep the real estate economy from being bogged down by inaccuracy, uncertainty and fraud. Our ability to do this is facilitated by a well thought out statutory and regulatory structure.

Good regulation only happens when our elected and appointed officials understand the important role that title professionals play in Florida’s real estate economy. While title insurance has never been a “hot button” issue (which indicates we have done a pretty good job of serving the public good;) several of our elected officials have worked closely with FLTA over the years and have shown that they truly understand the important role we play in Florida’s real estate economy.

As title professionals, we need to do our part to educate our candidates and elect officials who understand the importance of title insurance. And most important of all –

REMEMBER TO VOTE!

Customer Service in today's environment – Anonymous Author

The customer is why you go to work. If they go away.....you do too. - David Haverford

It seems like we are in a world wide funk. The economy is down, profits are down and the loan (avoidance) officers won't lend money. The "easy" title transaction is a very distant memory. Every order has its own problems and it seems the parties involved usually have a bad attitude.

I have been amazed at the reports of people receiving poor service in the news. One of the prime examples happened at a Tampa bank last September. The bank would not let a man cash his check because he could not provide a thumbprint. The man was born without arms! Perhaps a little flexibility would have been in order.

The worst example happened in Brooklyn last December. Two Emergency Medical Technicians were in a coffee shop taking a break when a 25 year old pregnant woman suffered a seizure. Instead of giving assistance, they told the store workers to call 911. They finished and left. The woman and her unborn child died. This is the ultimate example of "not-my-problem" attitude. Thankfully people do not normally die if they receive poor service from a title agent or attorney.

Many of the individuals we deal with have suffered economic losses. The stress level in our industry is unbelievably high. Now is the time we need to take a little more time and listen to our clients. As an industry, we need everyone involved in the transaction to understand the importance of what we do. One bad experience, incorrectly reported in the news could hurt us all. (I am sure a certain State Senator would love this.)

Everyone wants to be associated with successful happy people. If the client finishes the closing feeling like they were treated fairly and with respect, the closing was a success. Richard Bach, a popular 1970s author stated he would only do business with a profitable company. His opinion was that only a profitable company would take the time to give him good service. We all need to put on our happy face. Besides, nothing is more satisfying than a successful closing. Those always make me happy.

Keeping Up to DATE

Keeping our members informed of matters that impact the title insurance industry, is a primary focus of our Association. The quarterly newsletter will continue to keep you abreast of developments, but the term quarterly alerts you to the fact that the news stories that have a short shelf life may be stale when you read them. To stay on top of things on a daily basis consult the FLTA web site, www.flta.org.

WEB site changes are brewing!

Nothing in life is free (or at least very little). The FLTA website has always been open to the public in the hopes of attracting the attention of others in the industry and inspiring them to join our ranks. While many areas will continue to be accessible whether you are a member or not, certain areas will require membership for the data to be retrieved.

When the changes are ready, you will have plenty of notice and we will tell you what you need to do to obtain your "access code". In the mean time, encourage your industry neighbors to join the FLTA so they too will benefit from all the information we have to share.

Just a little humor if you please...

Firewalls and Spam Filters Block FLTA E-mails

It has come to our attention that many of our electronic mailings are being blocked by spam filters and firewalls installed on members computers. If you are not having this problem and are getting our newsletter via e mail and wish to continue to receive it electronically you don't need to do anything! If you would prefer to receive the newsletter by mail, please contact our office, so you can begin receiving it via mail. Our most important goal is providing our members with timely information and we strive to accomplish that. You can also check the FLTA's web site (www.flta.org) at your convenience to obtain news and information on upcoming programs.

It's "HOT, HOT, HOT... must be Summer!

This is our official Summer issue of the FLTA newsletter. If you missed any of the exciting issues that were previously distributed, be sure to visit our website, as all past issues can be found there.

The next "official" issue is scheduled to publish in November, AFTER the convention. Until then, check the website for updated info, or make sure we have your correct email address as most of our data is now delivered via email by broadcasting to our membership list.
